

Mike Goulas

Co-founder / Director of Business Development

Mango Languages Co-Founder Mike Goulas currently serves on the Leadership team as Director of Business Development. Passionate about relationship-building, Mike is always on the lookout for new opportunities to introduce the world to Mango.

At the forefront of Mango's first product launch in 2007, Mike hand-picked the initial group of native-speaker instructors. Initially Mango's Chief Operating Officer, Mike has held a number of roles at Mango since then, including Chief of Staff and Director of Product Development. As Chief of Staff, Mike recruited over 75% of the Mango team and instilled the importance of building connections in the company's culture, developing a close-knit team of talented professionals.

Prior to founding Mango, Mike owned and managed a restaurant chain in southeast Michigan, Honey Tree Grille. A related business venture also included bottling and selling the specialty salad dressing used in his restaurants.

Born and raised in Detroit, Michigan, Mike holds a bachelor's degree in science from Michigan State University and a master's degree in politics from the University of Dallas. Mike speaks Greek, Spanish, and English, and has also studied Ancient Greek and Russian.
