Mike Teshuba
Co-founder / Chief Operating Officer

Mango Languages Co-Founder Mike Teshuba currently serves on the Leadership team as Chief Operating Officer. A born problem-solver, Mike has held several titles throughout his career with Mango, including Chief Technology Officer, Product Development Director, and Manager of Marketing Communications.

As Chief Technology Officer, Mike successfully developed the original Mango product in 2007 and organized an online factory for language course construction in time for the product's second launch in 2009. Mike strategically leveraged his position as Product Development Director to form a partnership with Little Pim in 2010, effectively working with Little Pim Founder Julia Pimsleur to create a web-based, interactive version of the program. In 2013, Mike supervised the launch of Mango Premiere™, which provides language learning through English and foreign language films.

In his current role as COO of Mango, Mike works to integrate the various departments to form a cohesive unit by innovating internal communication and cross-functional collaboration. Passionate about facilitating real connections, Mike continues to help the Mango team grow through kindness, openness, and honesty.

Born and raised in Detroit, Michigan, Mike holds a bachelor's degree in computer science engineering with a cognate in general business administration from Michigan State University. Mike is fluent in both Spanish and English.
